ANIMAL JUNCTION WINNER OF TWO CHILDREN'S CHOICE AWARDS

WARMINSTER, PA (September 2008) - Animal Junction, Bucks County's first and only traveling zoo, was recently named the recipient of the 2007-2008 People's Choice Award by the Philadelphia Daily News and the 2008 Neighbor's Choice Award by the Philadelphia Inquirer for the category of Best Children's Entertainment.

"Animal Junction takes pride in providing exciting educational programs to Bucks County residents and families which emphasize wildlife and environmental conservation," says Jungle Joe, owner and founder of Animal Junction. "We cherish our large array of exotic mammals, birds, reptiles, marsupials, felines and are excited to continue to offer local residents a first-hand look into the daily lives of amazing wildlife."

The award recipients were nominated and voted on by the local reading audiences of both the Philadelphia Daily News and the Philadelphia Inquirer. The two "Best Children's Entertainment" awards were presented to "Jungle Joe" Fortunato. Animal Junction has become a household name in the Philadelphia-area for their unique and up-close wildlife experience for an assortment of entertainment events such as birthday parties, corporate picnics, and school assemblies to name a few.

Animal Junction recently received accreditation as an educational facility, which was sponsored by world renowned wildlife expert and enthusiast, Jack Hanna. Jungle Joe is currently seeking accreditation for Animal Junction to become an accredited wildlife facility.
